TUESDAY MORNING, APRIL 7, 1874.

THE WORK OF ORGANIZATION. sultation. If the same pru- oot herald their greatness, or extol dence and wise, considerate their merits and many virtues at our action be observed hereafter as heretofore, victory on the part of the Conservatives and Democrats in the county election is assured. Let us have a short canvass, but let us be prepared for it when it is inaugurated. The elements opposing Radicalism are still strong enough to win with good nominations, but it cannot hope to succeed with objectionable ones. The sooner this fact is realized by our friends the better it will be. The people must interest themselves, and force and compel the selection of good nominations, for all tion and prudence of A. B. Haynes and his excellent committee, with all their wisdom, cannot secure victory unless the honest masses, the tax-paying people, appear in the primary meetings, in the nominating conventions, and prevent the ambitious and self-seeking politicians from foisting themselves or objectionable men upon the people. We make these remarks for the purpose of awakening good citizens to the duties demanded of them. If this can be done, we shall soon hail the dawning of a day of greater promise to the people with whom this moveme t originated and man of the Bartlett meeting, has faith fully performed his duty. He has given us a committee composed of men of intelligence and prudence. This committee yesterday inaugurated their labors by a harmonious meeting. Now, if the primary meetings will select prudent delegates, and the nominating convention will present to the people unobjectionaable candidates-men who can win on account of their popularity, in consequence of their capacity and fidelity, their honesty and integrity, all will be well. There should be no active canvass before the people until nominations are made, for this produces dissensions and bickerings, which tell in the election. It is promotive of rings, cliques and factions, when there should be an unbroken brotherhood. It excites and somewhat impairs the interest of the people in advance of the real contest for the election. It has a strong tendency to prevent instead of producing that unanimity, that harmony, that earnestness and ardor upon which success depends. If gentlemen think proper to declare themselves candidates in anticipation of the convention, let them state distinctly that they mean to acquiesce in the decision of a nominating convention, whether that decision is for them or against them; or if they do not, let them be disregarded by the party, both in making nominations and on the day of the election. We cannot hope to succeed without organization—that erganization which induces every Conservative and Democrat to cling with unfoltering folds to the province of the conservative and Democrat to the province of the conservative and Democrat to cling with unfoltering folds to the province of the conservative of the conserva succeed without organization-that erfaltering faith to the nominees. We must stand together. We must frown down "independents" when they fail to secure nominations. He who holds his personal ambition, his own petty aspirations and undivided interests, above the opinions and wishes of Our neighbor of the Ledger, like the press generally, has great antipathy to this ubiquitous personage. Prior to every election "Many Voters" makes his appearance just as regularly as the warm REAL ESTATE, weather brings forth the summer flies, A contest for office causes "Many Voters' to bud and blossom as naturally as the fructifying sun brings forth the flowers. A warm spring-day is the signal for the birds to get high up on some swinging limb, and to commence those delightful songs which are the inspiration of lovers and poets; and the call for an election is the signal for "Many Voters" to rush into print—to the columns of "your valuable paper."

"Many Voters" have made their appearance in nearly every paper in the State, and they have made a raid more than the northeast corner of Jacob Well. and they have made a raid upon the APPEAL equal to that which the crusaders have made upon doomed dramshops. We have innumerable community of beginning.

Harry for office, and in each one the aspirant recommended is assured that if he can be induced to sacrifice himself for the public good by becoming a candidate, he will receive the enthusiastic support of "Many Voters," All such matter is tenderly and affectionately consigned to the waste-basket. And now that the canvass for county and State officers is about to commence, we deem it necessary to state, for the benefit of those who are not well informed as to what it costs to run a daily
